

Henning Scholz

partner and operations manager, Europeana Foundation, Hague

Henning Scholz, Partner and Operations Manager, Europeana Foundation. Palaeontologist by education, he worked for 10 years as a scientist and curator at the Natural History Museum Berlin. In that role he also started his career in the Europeana ecosystem. He coordinated the BHL-Europe project which was running from 2009 to 2012 to bring natural history literature into Europeana. He was also the first secretary of the Europeana Network when it was still the Council of Content Providers and Aggregators (CCPA) and in this capacity he was also a member of the Europeana Foundation Board. He joined the Europeana office in late 2012, first as the Europeana Network Coordinator and one year later he became the Partner of Operations Officer of the newly formed Data Partner Services team. In this capacity he works with the data partners of Europeana and is very much involved in the development of the aggregation infrastructure in Europe.
